Writer Statement

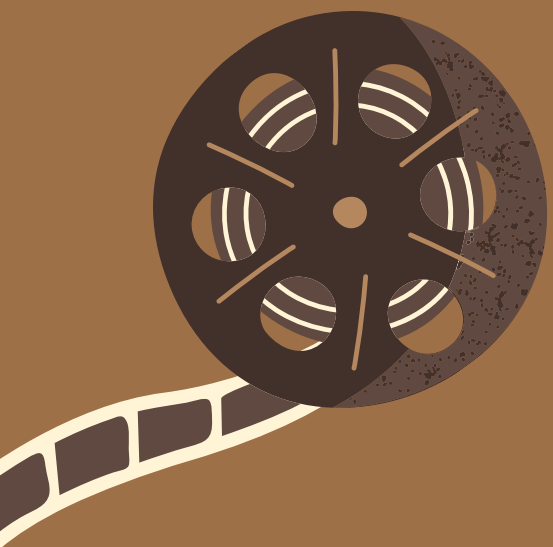

Humans sometimes do not always believe life is a gift, not infrequently some state that life is a form of curse that cannot be avoided not a choice.

With the birth of this movie, I hope it can be a handle to walk forward, even if slowly.

This movie then also becomes an extension of a voice that is not tired of reminding that being someone who reminds that being a human being born into the world is not a bad thing.

Life deserves to be celebrated, preserved, and of course loved.

The movie raises the issue of human rights restricted by a cruel superpower system and conveys the privilege of a woman who is a worthy helper for a true man, and is not restricted by discrimination against gender equality.

A true woman who loves her partner sincerely will fight for herself to survive against all odds to achieve the best decision for the future.
