BOBBY TAYLOR, 15, Caucasian, asks to play baseball with the high school team. His dad says "Bobby you're blind."

Bobby explains that he can hear the ball going through the air right before it hits the catcher's mitt. His dad tests him and finds out it is true.

They go to the A.D. of the school who explains to the coach that for the school to avoid a lawsuit, they have to let anyone try out, especially someone with a disability.

After 2 tries, Bobby makes the team, and actually plays in a game.
