Fusion is a Near-Future Sci-Fi intricately woven through time. It's based on my five-star rated novel, an Amazon Best Seller last year.

Genre: Sci-fi      Format: Feature      Comps: Tomorrow War, The Adam Project

Logline: A brilliant physicist infused with alien DNA as a child must find a way to defeat an evil extraterrestrial nation that plans to destroy all life on Earth.

Tone: Ominous.      Theme: Love conquers all.

The story as told by the protagonist:

I am not crazy. Elm Cove really did exist. I know it did. I remember it. I went there when I was just a young boy. It existed in this time stream. I'm sure of it...

I am Dr. Michael Phillips, Ph.D. I am not some crack-pot weirdo. I'm as sane and rational a person as you are. Twenty years ago, when I was just a young boy, I was caught up in an alien insurrection happening right here on Earth, but I was the only person that saw anything, and I was just a young boy at the time. They shot Kasia's mother and took little Kasia away. But no one believed me. I was just a kid. They said it was all just a bad dream... but it wasn't.

To make matters worse, my father was killed on duty. I was devastated and lost without him. Even so, my life went on, but I was never the same. Memories of that night faded, but something about me had changed forever. From that day on, I was like a stranger in a strange land. I was no longer like everyone else, and it was as if everyone around me knew that but me. It took twenty years for my life to fall apart and come to this. All of my success was empty.

It took the same twenty years for my Kasia to reach across the vastness of space and time to find me. She was the one who brought me back to Elm Cove. She was the one who helped me find the memories of what had happened. She brought me back into that interplanetary alien intrigue. It was not like a suspension of disbelief, but as if reality had suddenly been restored to me.

This intrigue has taken me in like a lost child, and I have become an integral part of it... so now I find my life in peril. Agents of the Kiihni High Command could close in on me at any time. In order to save Kasia's mother, I must succeed where physicists a million years more advanced than humans have failed. I have to see what they did not. My only advantage is that I think like a human, not a kiiahn. And then there is Arii. Only she knows the way through the multiple time loops that we face.

But then it got even worse; then I found out that the future of all life on Earth was at risk. As unbelievable as this sounds, the very same intelligent species that lit the flame of mankind over two-hundred thousand years ago was about to end us as an experiment gone wrong. Humans were far too competitive and aggressive. But for as advanced as the Kiihni Rebels' technology was, they failed to find the extinction device. One more time it all came down to me.

I found that evil device in the private estate of the man that had killed my father. At the last minute,

I sent them both through their own damned quantum wormhole to the planet from whence they came.

I thought that was the end of it. They had all been destroyed. Aarii even told me that we had been through this time loop 21 times before but had never come this far.

Then Kasia's mother told me that Kasia and I are a perfect combination of alien and human DNA, a fusion. Mankind's only hope will be to repopulate the Earth with Alia's 'improved' version of humans before the inevitable return of High Command.

If you're not worried, you should be.

Characters:

Dr. Michael Phillips, Ph.D.: Brilliant physicist. Mike begins the story alone, confused, and still grieving his father's loss. Discovering that Wolf had killed his father changes everything.

Kasia: Genetically joined in Elm Cove; she and Mike are true loves.

Aarii: Artificial woman, diabolical at times. Aarii is the only character that remembers every one of the previous 21 times this time loop has repeated. She is the key character guiding the story forward.

Alia: Kasia's mother, a brilliant alien geneticist, crosses Mike's and Kasia's DNA.

Fallon: Kasia's father, leader of the Alien Rebels here on Earth, sometimes obtuse.

High Command: Evil Alien organization, hunts down the alien rebels and human collaborators.

Wolfgang Rockarian: Archvillain, called Wolf, intensely focused, just plain evil.
